Linn County Emergency Management Agency Launches Redesigned Website

Redesigned look with enhanced access to information

LINN COUNTY, IA – January 6, 2020 – Linn County Emergency Management Agency is pleased to announce that its newly redesigned website is now available. The new www.linncounty-ema.org offers more user-friendly features with a variety of enhancements to improve the customer experience and accessing information from the Linn County Emergency Management easier.

“We are really excited to bring this updated and redesigned website to our partners and the communities we serve. We strive to stay connected and provide residents and visitors a positive experience.” ~ Steve O'Konek

Examples of the new features and functionality include:

- A new homepage layout that provides easy access to Emergency preparedness information, meeting agendas, County events, current weather, calendars and the ability to subscribe to Linn alerts for alert notifications via email or text message.
- Linn County Photo - The photo on the main page was taken near Palo and is the Chain Lakes Bridge. What a wonderful photo and it really shows the beauty of Linn County.
- Mobile responsiveness, which allows residents and visitors to access the website from any device – computers, smartphones or tablets – because the website will automatically resize itself to fit the device screen
- Simpler and easier design, that provide faster access to some of the most frequently visited areas of the website. These buttons appear on the homepage as well as underneath the content of all interior pages.
- Improved navigation with clear navigation terms that make it easier to find and access information by types of information or services more directly.
- Easy access to social media sites allows followers to access more up to date or breaking information from our agency.

We hope people who visit the website will find it of value and return to it frequently. Over the next few months, we will be adding new and updated information in order to keep it timely and relevant.
